About the Area: Hugglescote

Hugglescote, a village nestled along the River Sence in North West Leicestershire, offers a unique blend of rural charm and convenient access to urban amenities. Just a mile south of Coalville's town centre, Hugglescote seamlessly integrates with the town. While not technically part of Coalville, it enjoys all the benefits the town has to offer. Coalville, once a centre for mining, has undergone a remarkable transformation. Today, it sits at the heart of The National Forest, boasting reclaimed landscapes and scenic nature walks. Explore hidden gems like Snibston Country Park and Nature's Alive within the town itself. Hugglescote offers all the essentials for comfortable living. You'll find a well-regarded primary school, a community centre, convenient shops (one with a post office), churches, and a variety of dining options, including takeaways. With its rich history, beautiful surroundings, and friendly community, Hugglescote might just be the village you've been searching for.
